About the Conference

MolMat:TPR 2025, an international conference on molecular materials, is organized to explore the trials, perspectives, and reminiscence of molecular materials. It will embrace experiments, theory, computation, and recent technological advances in molecular materials especially in electronics, energy, and smart, functional applications. This symposium, an effort from the Department of Chemistry, BITS Pilani, Hyderabad campus, is conceived to bring scientists, researchers, and industrial partners working in the allied theme on the same platform with an eye toward great interactions and exchange of thoughts. Talks and presentations from renowned academicians and young researchers will provide a fantastic opportunity to expose post-graduate and Ph.D. students, postdoctoral researchers, and young researchers to the current state-of-the-art molecular materials in science and technology.

BITS Pilani University

The Birla Institute of Technology & Science Pilani (BITS Pilani) is a premier Indian Institute of international repute. In 1964, the Institute was incepted by Dr. G. D. Birla as the Founder Chairman. It has a rich legacy that has produced eminent educationists, researchers, and industrialists. BITS is a multi-campus university with four campuses in Pilani, Goa, Hyderabad, Mumbai, and Dubai (UAE). During its five decades as a University, BITS Pilani has established strong linkages with Universities, Research Institutes, Industries, R&D organizations, and Financial Institutions through its University-Industry linkage and University Immersion programs. In recognition of the high standard that BITS Pilani strives to uphold, the University Grant Commission, in 2018, has declared it an "Institute of Eminence" (IOE)

How to reach BITS Pilani Hyderabad Campus:

The campus is located at ~60 km from Rajiv Gandhi Intl. Airport (RGIA) and 22 km from Secunderabad railway station (Direct Bus no. 212).
